As you can see, it's not perfect, but heeeey, I'm all out of time and almost out of slip days! I couldn't figure out EXACTLY how to find the bounds for the bound box and decide when a point fell in the correct range AND I don't fully understand how to use interp2 so I suspect those two things were mainly what kept these panoramas from looking perfect.

2. I was really surprised by how well the two sofa photos laid together and how not-so-well the brick wall ones did! Hmmmm...I guess it's always gonna be hard to get things with such strong, organized design like that to look good when they're taken in two different photos. Thank you to snm0056 on Flickr for the photos!